Some of my earliest and fondest memories are found at the hem of my great grandmother's apron. As a child, all I wanted to do was be in the kitchen absorbing all she had to teach me. As soon as I could, I started working in a professional kitchen learning to create dishes from all over the world. Every day in this industry is an opportunity to create something new - this has been the driving force behind my passion for the past 20 years.

Starting out in hospitality at a young age, I attended culinary training through Southeastern Vocational High School. Over the years, I have diversified my career by working in Four Diamond AAA- rated hotels (managed by world-renowned companies,) sports stadiums, commercial and privately owned restaurants and other venues throughout New England. These experiences allowed me to hone-in best practices in food preparation and kitchen sanitation, safety and management.

Joining the team at Grand View in October 2016 as the Executive Chef was a meaningful milestone in my career. Here, alongside our talented and passionate team, I create a delectable experience for clients by applying culinary traditions and the latest trends. I believe that great ingredients and adoration come together to unleash the true potential of a dish. With this, we bring a stylish twist to each season's harvest. Bringing farm fresh local ingredients to your table is my drive. Creating cuisine with a story is my passion.
